Ellen Hewett, Director of the National College Transition Network (NCTN) at World Education, Inc.

Ellen Hewitt is the Director of the National College Transition Network (NCTN). She also moderates the Institute's new Transitions to Post-secondary Education Discussion List. Her experience includes: designing and moderating transition-related policy webinars; providing customized technical assistance and professional development; building organizational capacity; facilitating meetings and planning processes; and increasing the visibility of transition-related policy and practice for the adult education field. Prior to joining the NCTN team, Hewitt worked for over 25 years with non-traditional college students as an administrator and faculty member at Springfield College.

Hewitt earned her undergraduate degree in political science from McGill University and a graduate degree from Southern New Hampshire University in Human Services Administration. She has completed all of her coursework for a doctorate in adult education at Teachers College, Columbia University.
